

Contents

|                                                                                                                                                                |      |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Figures . . . . .                                                                                                                                              | xi   |
| Acknowledgments. . . . .                                                                                                                                       | xiii |
| 1. Why Study Channel Islands? A Question of Context,by Jeffrey H. Altschul . . . . .                                                     | 1    |
| The San Nicolas Island Prehistoric Context . . . . .                                                                                                           | 5    |
| What This Context Is and Is Not . . . . .                                                                                                                      | 9    |
| 2. Islanders and Mainlanders:A Critical Review of the Anthropological Literature,by Hsain Ilahiane and Jeffrey H. Altschul . . . . . | 11   |
| Why Study Islands? . . . . .                                                                                                                                   | 12   |
| Theoretical Frameworks of Island Studies . . . . .                                                                                                             | 15   |
| Social Organization of Maritime Societies:Functional Arguments. . . . .                                                                                    | 17   |
| Pacific Island Cultures . . . . .                                                                                                                              | 17   |
| The North American Pacific Coast: Baja to Alaska . . . . .                                                                                                     | 21   |
| The Seri . . . . .                                                                                                                                             | 21   |
| The Chumash . . . . .                                                                                                                                          | 24   |
| Cultures of the Pacific Northwest. . . . .                                                                                                                     | 25   |
| The Eskimo . . . . .                                                                                                                                           | 30   |
| Moving beyond Functionalism. . . . .                                                                                                                           | 33   |
| Islanders: Island Environments andMaritime Subsistence Strategies . . . . .                                                                                | 34   |
| Mainlanders: Mainland Coastal Environmentsand Maritime Subsistence Strategies . . . . .                                                                    | 36   |
| Islanders, Mainlanders, andthe Study of Maritime Adaptation. . . . .                                                                                       | 38   |
| 3. A Tale of Two Cultures: The Chumash and the Gabrielino,by William McCawley . . . . .                                                  | 41   |
| The Nature of the Islands . . . . .                                                                                                                            | 42   |
| The Plank Canoe. . . . .                                                                                                                                       | 46   |

|                                                                      |    |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Politics, Inter-marriage, and Trade on the Islands . . . . .         | 47 |
| Interaction with the Chumash Mainland . . . . .                      | 49 |
| Cross-Channel Migrations and Kinship Ties. . . . .                   | 49 |
| Cross-Channel Travel and Exchange . . . . .                          | 51 |
| Interaction with the Gabrielino Mainland . . . . .                   | 55 |
| Cross-Channel Migrations . . . . .                                   | 56 |
| Cross-Channel Exchange . . . . .                                     | 56 |
| Cross-Channel Exchange as an Adaptive Strategy . . . . .             | 59 |
| A Comparison of Mainland and Island Adaptations . . . . .            | 61 |
| Subsistence Strategies . . . . .                                     | 62 |
| Economic Exchange . . . . .                                          | 62 |
| Ritual Patterns . . . . .                                            | 63 |
| Concluding Thoughts . . . . .                                        | 64 |
| 4. Paradise or Purgatory: Environments, Past and Present, |    |
| by René L. Vellanoweth and Donn R. Grenda . . . . .           | 67 |
| Human Adaptation and                                                 |    |
| the Environments of the Bight. . . . .                               | 68 |
| Environments of the Coast . . . . .                                  | 68 |
| The Northern Coast . . . . .                                         | 68 |
| The Los Angeles Basin . . . . .                                      | 69 |
| The Southern Coast . . . . .                                         | 71 |
| The Channel Islands . . . . .                                        | 72 |
| Key Environmental Characteristics of the Bight . . . . .             | 73 |
| A Selected Review of Paleo-environmental Studies . . . . .           | 75 |
| Paleoceanographic Studies . . . . .                                  | 75 |
| Palynology . . . . .                                                 | 77 |
| Dendroclimatology . . . . .                                          | 79 |
| Stratigraphy . . . . .                                               | 81 |
| The Use of Paleo-environmental Interpretations                       |    |
| in Archaeological Arguments . . . . .                                | 82 |
| 5. Antiquarians, Culture Historians, and Scientists:      |    |
| The Archaeology of the Bight,                                        |    |
| by René L. Vellanoweth and Jeffrey H. Altschul . . . . .      | 85 |
| A Brief History of Archaeology                                       |    |
| in the Southern California Bight . . . . .                           | 86 |
| Early Investigations. . . . .                                        | 86 |
| Chronology Building . . . . .                                        | 89 |

|                                                              |     |
|--------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Scientific Approaches to Archaeology . . . . .               | 94  |
| The Late Pleistocene and the Early Holocene . . . . .        | 96  |
| The Middle Holocene . . . . .                                | 100 |
| Demographic Trends . . . . .                                 | 101 |
| The Shoshonean Incursion . . . . .                           | 102 |
| The Late Holocene . . . . .                                  | 105 |
| Conclusion . . . . .                                         | 111 |
| 6. A Moveable Feast: Isolation and Mobility among |     |
| Southern California Hunter-Gatherers,                        |     |
| by Donn R. Grenda and Jeffrey H. Altschul . . . . .   | 113 |
| Terminology . . . . .                                        | 114 |
| Island Settlement . . . . .                                  | 117 |
| The Early Holocene . . . . .                                 | 118 |
| The Middle Holocene . . . . .                                | 119 |
| The Late Holocene . . . . .                                  | 121 |
| Summary . . . . .                                            | 123 |
| Coastal Settlement . . . . .                                 | 124 |
| The Northern Coast . . . . .                                 | 124 |
| The Los Angeles Basin . . . . .                              | 127 |
| The Southern Coast . . . . .                                 | 130 |
| Desert Settlement . . . . .                                  | 131 |
| The Regional Adaptive System . . . . .                       | 137 |
| The Early Adaptive System . . . . .                          | 138 |
| Regional Diversification during the Late Holocene . . . .    | 141 |
| Conclusions . . . . .                                        | 145 |
| 7. Complex Cultures, Complex Arguments:           |     |
| Sociopolitical Organization in the Bight,                    |     |
| by Donn R. Grenda and Jeffrey H. Altschul . . . . .   | 147 |
| The Evolution of Sociopolitical Organization                 |     |
| in the Bight . . . . .                                       | 148 |
| Early Holocene Sociopolitical Organization . . . . .         | 148 |
| Middle and Late Holocene Sociopolitical Organization .       | 149 |
| Explaining Complexity . . . . .                              | 151 |
| The Tools of Explanation: Theoretical Constructs             |     |
| Used in the Study of Complexity . . . . .                    | 151 |
| Scale . . . . .                                              | 152 |
| Context . . . . .                                            | 153 |

|                                                                                |     |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Social Theory . . . . .                                                        | 155 |
| Substantivism . . . . .                                                        | 155 |
| Formalism . . . . .                                                            | 156 |
| Marxist Social Theory . . . . .                                                | 156 |
| Cultural Complexity . . . . .                                                  | 157 |
| Basic Goods . . . . .                                                          | 158 |
| Luxury Items . . . . .                                                         | 159 |
| Explaining Complexity in the Bight: Case Studies . . . .                       | 161 |
| Modeling the Rise of Complexityin the Northern Bight . . . . .             | 161 |
| Life on the Edge of Chaos:Social Organization in the Los Angeles Basin . . | 164 |
| An Interpretive Framework for the Bight . . . . .                              | 168 |
| Classification of Regions . . . . .                                            | 169 |
| Regional Interaction . . . . .                                                 | 170 |
| The Bight as a Cultural System . . . . .                                       | 172 |
| Scenario 1: A North-to-South Cultural Cline . . . .                            | 173 |
| Scenario 2: A Synergistic Path to Complexity . . . .                           | 175 |
| Conclusion . . . . .                                                           | 177 |

8. Scales and Axes:

|                                                                                           |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| The Cultural Geography of Southern California,by Jeffrey H. Altschul . . . . . | 179 |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|

|                            |     |
|----------------------------|-----|
| References Cited . . . . . | 187 |
| Index . . . . .            | 241 |
| Contributors . . . . .     | 257 |